Using Sentence Types to Develop New Ideas

After determining what you feel represents the author's purpose of "Raymond's Run," begin to synthesize your ideas here on this worksheet. First, in the space below, write a complete sentence that reflects what you think is the author's purpose.  After that, write two of each sentence type expanding out on this idea.  Be sure to include specific details from the story to support your author's purpose.  No need for quotes yet.  Just focus on the fine details and how they support your idea.

_____

_____

Simple:

Simple:

Compound:

Compound:

Complex:

Complex:

Compound-Complex:

Compound-Complex: